

Media policy MARIN

As an independent and innovative service provider for the maritime industry and a contributor to the well being of society, MARIN likes to share its vision with third parties.

To avoid misinterpretation or concerning incorrectnesses, MARIN pursues the following media policy.

- MARIN requires inspection of the questions before an interview (by telephone).
- MARIN is willing to participate in live interviews, if a prediscussion has taken place.
- MARIN reserves the right on approval and rectification, to make modifications if actual incorrectnesses or unjust views are found or if the wrong conclusions have been drawn.
- Publication of an article or use of material is only permitted after the consent (in writing or by e-mail) by your contact person at MARIN.
- MARIN receives a proof copy if the information has been used in a piece of writing or an edited video.

MARIN reserves the right to use the published or edited material without prior permission, unless agreed upon otherwise.